

Jaru's City Hall migration to Google Workspace

Our main role was to manage the project, migrating data from the former environment to Google Workspace, as well as to configure and implement it according to Google methodology. Training sessions were also applied to administrators and end users.

The challenge

Client did not have management over the email licenses it used in the former provider, and the delay and inoperation of the server were constant, leaving employees with no access to its email accounts and folders. Besides, there was no security layer, letting the institution out of compliance with the Administration Regulatory Sector.

The solution

The solution was to provision and migrate 170 licenses to Google Workspace, including training sessions to administrators and end users. Our team should analyze the client's existing environment, so then the strategy for migration and implementation could be executed.

The result

The migration to Google Workspace allowed the client to be able to dedicate time to other less complex and equally important and relevant services, as the former email server required full team dedication, due to complexity and security. IPNET's performance during the project was efficient and effective, team was always ready and active to assist the client and complete the project successfully.

“ We no longer had to worry about whether emails were being delivered and received in a timely manner, safely, with data loss and in compliance with security parameters and, especially in terms of brazilian Data Protection General Law. ”

Hemerson Assis - IT Director - Prefeitura de Jaru
