

JB Cocoa

Deloitte replaced their legacy Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) system with SAP S/4HANA on GCP, thereby enabling custom codes for new business needs. Deloitte continues to provide managed services for Google Cloud services.

The challenge

As JB Cocoa expands, increased visibility across the business was critical to improve decision-making and minimize risks. Prior to SAP on Google Cloud, the month-end costing process proved very challenging for the finance team who needed to track expenses. Additionally, it was important that they understood their risk exposure and position in real-time.

The solution

JB Cocoa wanted a scalable foundation to be deployed to overseas entities in stages. The first phase included Core Foundation and Pilot sites implementation where Deloitte worked with GCP to prescribe the 'On-Demand' capacity and servers needs. Subsequently the services and provision for additional capacity was expanded to meet the higher number of users using S/4HANA.

The results

JB Cocoa now has flexibility to scale their Central Processing Unit (CPU) and memory independently to run workloads, minimized market risk exposure with real-time data from intercompany transactions, accelerated product costing run, faster responses to customer queries and compliance audits, and early watch monitoring and frequent reviews and finetuning via Deloitte's managed services.

“SAP on Google Cloud centralizes our business processes, from sales to logistics, and incorporates internal and external data for greater traceability and financial transparency. Our use of Google Cloud powered by renewable energy will enable us to meet our ESG goals and, more broadly, contribute to our customers' emission reduction targets!”
