

Mystifly Migrates to Google Cloud Platform for Cost Optimization

Niveus successfully migrated Mystifly's workloads from Azure to the Google Cloud Platform, ensuring compliance with existing regulations and enhancing operational excellence through cloud governance and FinOps best practices.

The challenge

The main challenge was to migrate Mystifly's Development, Staging and Production infrastructure including associated databases all within a tight deadline and with minimal/zero escalations. The decision reflects Mystifly's commitment to leveraging advanced technology for enhanced operational efficiency and maintaining a competitive edge in the market.

The solution

Mystifly's infrastructure uses Google Cloud, featuring Cloud Armor, NGFW, and Global Cloud Load Balancer for security and efficiency. GKE, Compute Engine, and managed instance groups host app layers, integrating seamlessly with GCP databases. Google Cloud IAM manages access, with CI frameworks for development.

The result

Mystifly migrated 4 environments to GCP, enhancing financial performance through cost optimization, competitive pricing, and credits. The transition to Google Cloud improved operational standards and compliance. Niveus' seamless delivery earned recognition from Google and leadership. Over hundreds of GB of data were migrated in less than 3 months with zero escalations.

“ Our partnership with Niveus supports Mystifly's mission to modernize travel infrastructure across the entire ecosystem, delivering solutions that bridge old and new technologies and catering to the discerning needs of travelers and the efficiency of sellers and suppliers. ”

Rajeev Kumar, Chief Executive Officer at Mystifly
