

Delivering a Progressive Cloud Solution for Jimmy Brings

Jimmy Brings had no GCP skills and the GCP platform was managed by their parent company Endeavour Drinks Limited (EGL). We were their strategic partner responsible for the design and build of the entire GCP architecture to host their logistics apps

The challenge

Jimmy Brings sought a discovery and analysis of their existing application landscape and modernisation within cloud-native architecture to support the demands of their fast-growing business. With the infrastructure hosted in multiple datacenters, faced challenges with a lack of automation, the inability to scale up or down depending on business demand, and significant maintenance restrictions

The solution

In considering the Jimmy Brings scenario, Contino proposed Google Cloud Platform (GCP) architecture aligned with EGL's framework and security protocols. Application migration roadmaps and application modernisation architecture plans were developed collaboratively prior to implementation to ensure minimal risk to business continuity and end-user impacts. Contino successfully migrated the logistics

The result

Along with anecdotal evidence, metrics indicate application management efficiency gains, streamlined and repeatable deployments, and automated build and deployment pipelines. Productivity gains have resulted from improved developer onboarding and improved local development experience through 3Musketeers automation. Revenue gains are being seen in the reduction in development costs

“What impressed me most about the whole Contino engagement was the constant sense that everything was being handled in a professional manner and that the team was collaborating productively with Jimmy Brings team members. The project governance was second to none – issues and risks were communicated early, the critical path was always clear”
